NEW SHADOWMATCH FUNCTIONALITIES GO LIVE!

Once an individual has completed the Shadowmatch worksheet, the system has so much data available that numerous reports can be generated off the information the data represents. During the first seven years of Shadowmatch, the development team didn't anticipate the need for a full detailed individual report describing the detail meaning of all the habits identified by Shadowmatch. The number of requests received for individual feedback and requests from administrators for detailed feedback to individuals, convinced the research team to rethink the need for a detailed full report to the individual. About two years ago the team started with the research to create such a report. This full individual feedback report is generated by the system and it is as complete and accurate as the interpretation feedback provided by any of the Shadowmatch specialists.

The Shadowmatch development team is close to being ready to release this new functionality and final testing is currently being done. Once testing has been completed, training material will be sent to all clients. Without labouring the detail of what this new report will be like, herewith a short outline of the new system capabilities. [READ MORE]
